

Book 1. Family Travel Guide Book 2. Singles-Women-Minority-Pet Travel Guide Book 3. Older People Travel-Recreation Guide Book 4. Disability World Travel Guide There are different groups of traveler that the tourist industry caters to such as: families people who want to travel with pets singles young people women religious tours Jewish Black older people disabled people people with medical conditions who need regular treatment If you want to bring a pet overseas, you have to follow all the rules and even then if you're going to an island, they usually quarantine pets at your expense for a specified amount of time. The minimum is about six weeks. It can go as high as six months quarantine. Many single people and many women don't like to travel alone. You can go on group tours specifically geared for singles or for women. You can find travel buddies through various online forums. There are cruises that pair singles in cabins as cabin mates. There is even travel dating like misstravel.com. Some people have special needs when traveling like disabled people and people with medical conditions. People have diabetes and kidney diseases but they can still travel and get the routine medical care they need in a foreign land. You can get kidney dialysis treatments almost anywhere. There are options. There is also medical tourism for people who want to get surgery in a foreign land because it's cheaper than at home. There are surgeries done in foreign lands that North American doctors won't do like stem cell surgeries and other surgeries not approved by western medical associations.
